Origin operates in seven countries serving over 50,000 customers with over 2,600 employees.

Our ethical standards

Origin is committed to operating in an ethically and responsible manner, ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains. This commitment is reflected through the ongoing implementation of procedures and controls. Origin is prepared to terminate the relationship with any supplier or partner to its operations, where they do not comply with the UK Modern Slavery Act 2015. In addition, the Group may seek to engage and work with these suppliers to ensure compliance.

Our supply chain

The Group endeavours to maintain close commercial relationships with all its suppliers, the most significant of whom are large multinational organisations who supply across all our geographical markets. Nevertheless, our Companies remain vigilant to all risks within their own specific supply chains and within the network of other partnerships, particularly with small-scale businesses and farms and growers in whose sector there may sometimes be a higher risk of unlicensed manual labour.

Continuous progress

Origin recognises the importance of continuous improvement. We monitor changes in government guidance in relation to modern slavery and we support our business units within the Origin Group to operate best practice supply chain management. During the period since our last report, Origin has become a signatory of the United Nations (U.N.) Global Compact, committed to aligning its corporate strategy and business operations with the Ten Principles of the U.N. Global Compact on human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption, and U.N. Sustainable Development Goals. Other actions taken across our businesses include the implementation of a Modern Slavery Policy, the establishment of a Modern Slavery Steering Committee and the roll-out of new e-learning employee training.

The pandemic

We are acutely aware that the outbreak of COVID-19 during the past year brought increased risk to modern slavery in various industries, including the agricultural sector, on a worldwide basis. Within the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, agriculture was identified as a key sector whereby the vast bulk of services Origin provides are deemed essential to the maintenance and continuity of the food supply chain. Continuity of operations has been a key focus to ensure that farmers and growers continued to receive the products they needed to maintain a strong food supply chain in each of our markets. In order to do this, it was critical that the safety and wellbeing of our workforce and supply chain stakeholders was maintained.

In this regard, whilst we continue to monitor indications affecting our industry, our response to the pandemic has included a combination of measures by reference to centrally-driven guidance and local leadership and management procedures and controls, including:

- Implementation of safety protocols across the Group's operations, including ensuring protective personal equipment, hygiene and cleaning protocols are in place, implementing working from home arrangements where possible and having in place specific protocols for high-risk individuals.
- Risk assessments and audits of all operating facilities to ensure adherence to health and safety guidance and provide the safest environment we can for our stakeholders.
- Additional advice and support initiatives for employees to promote physical and mental health and wellbeing, including through our employee assistance programs, webinars, online training and dedicated COVID-19 resources.

Due diligence

The Group has identified procedures and ongoing actions to identify and mitigate the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking, through the following:

- Availability of a whistleblowing hotline to provide employees with an opportunity to identify risks anonymously through a confidential, 24/7/365 operated service.
- Internal 'risk checks' to ensure that permanent or seasonal employment does not contravene our own ethical standards or any legislation or government guidance.
- Third party supplier compliance check process, requiring new and existing suppliers to read and accept our stance in relation to preventing modern slavery.
- Collaboration with colleagues within our Group companies to share knowledge, learnings and best practice to further mitigate risks of modern slavery in our network.

We actively welcome comments and suggestions within our supply chain to ensure we continue to identify, assess and address risks of modern slavery within our operations and across our supply chain. If you have any questions, please contact us by emailing us on enquiries@originenterprises.ie.

This Statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015.
